Preamble

In this Note unless the context indicates otherwise –

- “paragraph” means a paragraph of the Fourth Schedule to the Act;
- “section” means a section of the Act;
- “the Act” means the Income Tax Act No. 58 of 1962;
- “TA Act” means the Tax Administration Act No. 28 of 2011; and
- any word or expression bears the meaning ascribed to it in the Act.

1. Purpose

This Note provides guidance on provisional tax and considers –

- who is a provisional taxpayer;
- the calculation of provisional tax including how estimates of taxable income must be made;
- the consequences of an incorrect or late submission of estimates; and
- the consequences of a late payment of provisional tax.

2. Background

Employees who earn remuneration generally pay tax in the form of employees’ tax (PAYE) on a monthly basis. This results in the collection of an employee’s normal tax liability being spread throughout the year with a potential additional payment or a refund at the end of the year of assessment. However, for people who do not earn “remuneration” as defined in the Fourth Schedule to the Act, for example, a self-employed person earning business income, in the absence of a provisional tax system the full amount of tax would only be payable on assessment at the end of the year of assessment, without the option or obligation of making interim payments like those paying PAYE monthly.

Provisional tax is not a separate tax payable by certain persons. It is merely a method used to collect normal tax,¹ that will ultimately be payable for the year of assessment concerned, during the year. Otherwise stated, provisional tax is an advance payment of a taxpayer’s normal tax liability. A provisional taxpayer is generally required to make two provisional tax payments, one six months into the year of assessment and one at the end of the year of assessment, but has the option to make a third top-up payment after the end of the year of assessment.

¹ That is, income tax on “taxable income” as defined in section 1(1) and read with section 5(1).

Provisional tax payments are calculated on estimated taxable income for the particular year of assessment.² These estimates of taxable income are submitted to SARS on an IRP6 return. The returns, which can be obtained through e-filing, the SARS contact centre or a SARS branch office, must be submitted even if the amount of the provisional tax payment is nil. The normal tax payable on the estimated taxable income is calculated at the relevant rate of tax that is in force on the date of payment of provisional tax. This would generally be the rate of tax as prescribed in the tax tables which are fixed annually by Parliament.³ The Commissioner may, from time to time, prescribe alternative tax tables for optional use by provisional taxpayers falling within a certain category.⁴

Provisional tax payments are not refundable.⁵ However, at the end of the year of assessment the provisional tax payments, together with any PAYE withheld during the year, are set-off against the taxpayer's liability for normal tax. Any excess of provisional tax and PAYE over the liability for normal tax is refunded to the taxpayer,⁶ and any shortfall would be payable by the taxpayer to SARS.

There are certain rules that must be adhered to when making estimates of taxable income for provisional tax purposes. Certain penalties and interest will be imposed if the estimates are inaccurate or if the submission of the estimates or the payment of provisional tax is late. This Note discusses these rules and the interest and penalties which may be imposed.

In the context of provisional tax is it particularly important to note that if –

- a day notified by SARS or specified in the Act for payment, submission or other action; or
- the last day of a period within which payment, submission or other action under the Act must be made,

falls on a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday, the action must be done not later than the last business day before the Saturday, Sunday or public holiday.⁷

3. The law

For ease of reference the relevant legislation is quoted in the Annexure.

² Paragraph 17(3).

³ Paragraph 17(4), read with section 5(2) and the Rates and Monetary Amounts and Amendment of Revenue Laws Act applicable to the relevant year of assessment.

⁴ Paragraph 17(5).

⁵ Paragraph 28.

⁶ Paragraph 28, read with section 190 of the TA Act.

⁷ Section 244(1) of the TA Act.

4. Application of the law

4.1 Who is liable to pay provisional tax?

A provisional taxpayer⁸ is –

- any person (other than a company) who earns income which does not constitute remuneration⁹ or an allowance or advance¹⁰ (such as a travelling allowance, subsistence allowance and public officer allowance);
- any company; and
- any person notified by the Commissioner that he or she is a provisional taxpayer,

but excluding the following persons:¹¹

- (i) Any approved public benefit organisation;¹²
- (ii) Any approved recreational club;¹³
- (iii) Any body corporate, share block company or association of persons contemplated in section 10(1)(e);
- (iv) Non-resident owners or charterers of ships or aircraft within the ambit of section 33;¹⁴
- (v) Any natural person who, on the last day of the year of assessment, will be under the age of 65 and does not derive income from the carrying on of any business,¹⁵ if that person's taxable income for that year of assessment –
 - (a) will not exceed the annual tax threshold (R67 111 for the 2014 year of assessment); or
 - (b) which is derived from interest, foreign dividends and rental from the letting of fixed property will be R20 000 or less.¹⁶
- (vi) Any natural person who, on the last day of the year of assessment, will be 65 years of age or older, if the Commissioner is satisfied that person's taxable income for that year will not –
 - (a) exceed R120 000;
 - (b) be derived wholly or in part from the carrying on of any business; and
 - (c) be derived otherwise than from remuneration, interest, foreign dividends and rental from the letting of fixed property.¹⁷

⁸ Paragraph 1.

⁹ As defined in paragraph 1.

¹⁰ As contemplated in section 8(1).

¹¹ Definition of a "provisional taxpayer" in paragraph 1, read with paragraph 18.

¹² As contemplated in paragraph (a) of the definition of a "public benefit organisation" in section 30(1) and approved by the Commissioner under section 30(3).

¹³ As contemplated in the definition of a "recreational club" in section 30A (1) and approved by the Commissioner under section 30A(2).

¹⁴ Paragraph 18(1)(b).

¹⁵ The meaning of a "business" is discussed in the SARS Guide on the Ring-Fencing of Assessed Losses Arising from Certain Trades Conducted by Individuals, issued 8 October 2010 (www.sars.gov.za).

¹⁶ Paragraph 18(1)(c).

¹⁷ Paragraph 18(1)(d).

In addition to the above, certain limited taxable capital gains made by a long term insurance company¹⁸ are exempt from provisional tax.

A person only earning remuneration (such as salary, wages, bonuses and pension) would generally pay tax on a monthly basis in the form of PAYE. Accordingly, that person would not be a provisional taxpayer which is reasonable given that the appropriate normal tax should be collected through the PAYE system and does not therefore need to be collected through provisional tax.

Any person who is a provisional taxpayer must apply to the Commissioner for registration as a provisional taxpayer within 21 business days of meeting the requirements detailed above.¹⁹

4.2 When is provisional tax payable and how is it calculated?

4.2.1 Provisional taxpayers other than companies

Provisional tax is payable three times in respect of a year of assessment:²⁰

- (i) The first period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending six months from the start of the taxpayer's year of assessment. This means that for a year of assessment that starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the first period for which provisional tax becomes due will be the period ending on 31 August. The first provisional tax payment must be made on or before the last day of that period, that is, 31 August. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay half of the estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The first provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:²¹

	R
Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Primary, secondary and tertiary rebates under section 6	(XXXX)
Less: Tax credit for medical scheme fees under section 6A	(XXXX)
Less: Additional medical expenses tax credit under section 6B ²²	(XXXX)
Total Tax Payable (A)	XXXX
Half of the normal tax payable on estimated taxable income (A / 2)	XX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the first period	(X)
Less: Foreign tax credits (section 6quat and section 6quin) for the first 6 months.	(X)
First provisional tax payment	XXXX

¹⁸ Resulting from the application of the deemed disposal rules under section 29B for years of assessment ending on or after 29 February 2012 but not later than 31 October 2012.

¹⁹ Paragraph 17(8), read with section 22 of the TA Act.

²⁰ Paragraph 21, read with paragraph 23A.

²¹ Effective calculation applying paragraph 21(1)(a) and paragraph 17.

²² Effective for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 March 2014.

- (ii) The second period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. This means that for a year of assessment which starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the second period for which provisional tax becomes due will be the period ending on 28 February or 29 February, as appropriate. The second provisional tax payment must be made on or before the last day of the year of assessment in question. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The second provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:²³

	R
Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Primary, secondary and tertiary rebates under section 6	(XXXX)
Less: Tax credit for medical scheme fees under section 6A	(XXXX)

Total Tax Payable	XXXX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the year	(X)
Less: First provisional tax payment (if actually paid)	(X)
Less: Foreign tax credits (section 6 quat and section 6 quin) for the year	(X)
Second provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (iii) The third period for which the payment of provisional tax can be made²⁴ is for the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment but payment may be made not later than seven months after the end of that year of assessment.²⁵ This means that for a year of assessment which starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the third provisional tax payment must be made by 30 September in order to reduce the provisional taxpayer's exposure to interest payable. The payment is commonly referred to as a "top-up payment" and is voluntary. Unlike with the first and second period, the payment is generally not determined through an estimation of taxable income but is based on actual taxable income for the year as this figure is often known to the provisional taxpayer when making the top-up payment. The top-up payment is a mechanism which assists the taxpayer to avoid or reduce the imposition of interest on underpayments of provisional tax. The top-up payment is calculated as follows:

²³ Effective calculation applying paragraph 21(1)(b) and paragraph 17.

²⁴ At the option of the provisional taxpayer for the purpose of avoiding or reducing interest which may become payable under section 89*quat*(1).

²⁵ Paragraph 23A read with section 89*quat*.

Less: Foreign tax proved to be payable which will qualify for a rebate under section 6 quat (1) and section 6 quin	(X)
Top-up payment	XXXX

A person other than a company may apply to the Commissioner for permission to draw accounts to a date falling after the end of the year of assessment.²⁶ An approved application will have the following effect on provisional tax:

- The dates for the first and second periods will be as prescribed by the Commissioner and may accordingly differ to the dates discussed above.²⁷
- Top-up payment payments must be paid by not later than 6 months after the end of the year of assessment (as opposed to the 7-month period referred to above).²⁸

4.2.2 Provisional taxpayers who are companies

Provisional tax is payable three times during the year of assessment:

- (i) The first period²⁹ for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending six months from the start of the company's year of assessment. Payment must be made on or before the end of this period. In other words, if the company's financial year begins on 1 June, the first period will be the period ending on 30 November of that year and payment must be made on or before 30 November. The company is required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay half of the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The first provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:³⁰

²⁶ Section 66(13A).

²⁷ Paragraph 21(2). Subject to objection and appeal under section 3(4)(e).

²⁸ Paragraph 23A, read with section 89*quat*.

²⁹ Paragraph 23A.

- (ii) The second period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. Payment must be made on or before the last day of the year of assessment. Accordingly, if the company has a financial year-end of 31 May, the second period for purposes of provisional tax will be the period ending on 31 May and payment must be made on or before this date. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The second provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:³¹

	R
Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the year	(X)
Less: First provisional tax payment (if actually paid)	(X)
Less: Foreign tax proved to be payable (section 6quat and section 6quin) for the year	(X)
Second provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (iii) The third period for which payment can be made is for the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. Payment can be made not later than seven months after the end of the year of assessment if the company's year of assessment ends on the last day of February, otherwise the payment must be made not later than six months after the end of the year of assessment. For companies, the end of the year of assessment is the financial year-end. For example, if the financial year-end of the company is 31 May 2014, the top-up payment would need to be made by 30 November 2014.

4.2.3 Additional information relating to the payment of provisional tax

The Commissioner may release a provisional taxpayer from making a first provisional tax payment if the Commissioner is satisfied that the provisional taxpayer's taxable income for the year of assessment concerned cannot be estimated based on the available facts at the time the payment should be made.³² The Commissioner's decision is subject to objection and appeal.³³

4.3 The first period – estimates of taxable income, penalties and interest

4.3.1 Estimates of taxable income

For the first period, a provisional taxpayer is required to submit a return to the Commissioner which includes an estimate of the total taxable income (estimate) that will be derived by the taxpayer in the relevant year of assessment.³⁴ The amount of the first provisional tax payment is based on this estimate (see 4.2.1 and 4.2.2).

Taxable income is equal to gross income less exempt income less all amounts allowed to be deducted or set off³⁵ plus all amounts included or deemed to be included in taxable income under the Act.

For persons other than companies, the estimate must exclude the taxable portion of lump sum benefits³⁶ and severance benefits³⁷ received by or accrued to (or to be received by or accrue to) the taxpayer during the year of assessment.

The amount of the estimate cannot be less than the "basic amount" unless the Commissioner, having regard to the circumstances of the case, agrees to accept a lower amount.³⁸ The "basic amount" is the taxable income assessed for the latest preceding year of assessment, less any taxable capital gain included therein and, for persons other than a company, any taxable portion of a lump sum benefit or ³² Paragraph 24.

³³ Section 3(4)(e).

³⁴ Paragraph 19(1).

³⁵ Under Part 1 of Chapter II of the Act.

³⁶ As defined in section 1(1), namely, retirement fund lump sum benefits and retirement fund lump sum withdrawal benefits.

³⁷ As defined in section 1(1).

³⁸ Paragraph 19(1)(c).

severance benefit, other than any amount included under paragraph (eA) of the term “gross income”.³⁹

The “latest preceding year of assessment”⁴⁰ means the latest of the year of assessment –⁴¹

- preceding the year of assessment for which the estimate is made, and
- for which a notice of assessment⁴² was issued by the Commissioner 14 or more days before the date on which the estimate was submitted to the Commissioner.

An exception to the 14-day rule exists if the Commissioner has issued a return to the provisional taxpayer and the return indicates the taxable income for the latest preceding year of assessment to be that of a year for which an assessment was issued less than 14 days before the date on which the estimate is submitted to the Commissioner. In these circumstances the provisional taxpayer has the option of using the year last assessed and the basic amount as reflected on the return issued by the Commissioner⁴³ or the provisional taxpayer may use the year of assessment meeting the criteria for the latest preceding year of assessment as discussed above and calculate the basic amount as discussed above.

The basic amount must be increased by 8% of the basic amount per year if an estimate –

- is made for a period that ends more than one year after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment, and
- the estimate is made more than 18 months after the end of that year of assessment.⁴⁴

The 8% escalation is added for each year from the end of the latest preceding year of assessment to the end of the year of assessment for which the estimate is made. The escalation is calculated on a simple basis, not on a compound basis.

The addition of the 18-month rule, effective from 1 October 2012, will have the effect that taxpayers who are reasonably up to date with the submission of tax returns will not be subject to the 8% per year escalation on the basic amounts for the first provisional tax payment.

³⁹ Paragraph 19(1)(d)(i) and (ii).

⁴⁰ Paragraph 19(1)(e).

⁴¹ As provided in paragraph 19(1)(e).

⁴² Depending on the circumstances this could be a notice applicable to an original, reduced or additional assessment. The latest notice of assessment issued for a particular year of assessment must be considered.

⁴³ Proviso to paragraph 19(1)(e)(ii).

⁴⁴ Paragraph 19(1)(d).

Example 1 – Determining whether to increase the basic amount*Facts:*

X's year of assessment ends on 28 February each year. X must submit a first period provisional tax estimate for the 2014 year of assessment on 30 August 2013.⁴⁵ A notice of assessment was issued to X for the 2013 year of assessment on 18 August 2013. X's taxable income was R210 000. A notice of assessment for the 2012 year of assessment was issued on 31 July 2012. X's taxable income as assessed in 2012 was R150 000. X did not have any taxable capital gains or retirement or severance related lump sums in 2012.

X submitted the first period provisional tax estimate of taxable income on 30 August 2013.

Result:

X's latest preceding year of assessment is 2012 because it is the latest year of assessment for which X was issued a notice of assessment 14 days or more from the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted. X's 2013 assessment is not the latest year of assessment and cannot be used to calculate the basic amount as the notice of assessment was issued less than 14 days before the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted.

Accordingly, X must use the 2012 assessment to determine the basic amount. The estimate is made for a period that ends on 28 February 2014 which is more than one year after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment (28 February 2012) but the estimate is made on 31 August 2013 which is not more than 18 months after the end of that year (28 February 2012). As both conditions (that is, the '1-year-rule' and the '18-month-rule') are not met, the 8% escalation is not applied and X's basic amount will be the amount of taxable income as assessed in 2012, that is, R150 000.

Example 2 - Determining whether to increase the basic amount*Facts:*

X's year of assessment ends on 28 February each year. X must submit a first period provisional tax estimate for the 2014 year of assessment on 30 August 2013. For the 2011 year of assessment, a notice of assessment was issued on 30 June 2011. X's taxable income as assessed in 2011 was R170 000. The 2012 and 2013 returns have not yet been submitted. Taxable income as assessed in 2011 included a taxable capital gain of R10 000 and a severance benefit of R20 000.

Result:

X's latest preceding year of assessment is 2011 because it is the latest year of assessment for which X was issued a notice of assessment 14 days or more from the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted. X's 2012 and 2013 assessments are yet to be issued.

⁴⁵ Last business day under section 244(1) of the TA Act.

The estimate of taxable income is made for a period that ends on 28 February 2014 which is more than one year after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment (28 February 2011) and is more than 18 months after the end of that year. As both conditions are met (that is, the '1-year-rule' and the '18-month-rule'), the basic amount must be increased. The basic amount of R140 000 (taxable income assessed for 2011 of R170 000 less taxable capital gain of R10 000 less severance benefit of R20 000) must be increased by 8% for each year up to and including the current year, that is, an 8% increase for 2012, 2013 and 2014. X's basic amount for the second provisional tax estimate for 2014 will therefore be R173 600 [R140 000 + (R140 000 × 8% × 3)].

The Commissioner may estimate taxable income if a provisional taxpayer has failed to submit an estimate as required under the Fourth Schedule to the Act.⁴⁶

The Commissioner may:

- Request a taxpayer to justify the estimate submitted or to furnish particulars of income and expenditure or any other particulars that may be required for the year of assessment for which the provisional tax payment is being made.⁴⁷ Justification for the estimate or the request for further information and support will generally be requested when the taxpayer submits an estimate which is above or below the basic amount. It can, however, be requested when an estimate equal to the basic amount is submitted.
- Exercise the discretion referred to in the preceding point at any time.
- Increase a taxpayer's estimate to an amount the Commissioner considers reasonable if, after requesting justification, the Commissioner is not satisfied with the estimate.

The additional provisional tax payable on an increased estimate must be settled within a period determined by the Commissioner.⁴⁸

It is not possible to provide an exhaustive list of situations in which the Commissioner's discretion may be exercised. However, the following are some examples:

- An increase in taxable income resulting from events like legislative changes, mergers or acquisitions.
- Financial results that support an increase in taxable income.
- The estimate submitted by the taxpayer is based on a basic amount that is more than two years old.
- It is the taxpayer's first year of assessment.

A nil estimate, based on the premise that the "basic amount" is nil, will not be accepted as an estimate made in respect of a taxpayer's first year of assessment. A taxpayer in this position does not have a "basic amount" as defined⁴⁹ and is ⁴⁶ Paragraph 19(2).

⁴⁷ Paragraph 19(3).

⁴⁸ Paragraph 25(1).

⁴⁹ See paragraph 19(1)(d).

required to submit an estimate of the total taxable income in relation to that particular year of assessment.⁵⁰

Any estimate⁵¹ or increase⁵² in estimate by the Commissioner is deemed to take effect in respect of the relevant period. Accordingly, if, for example, two months after the end of the year of assessment the Commissioner increases a taxpayer's estimate of taxable income for the second period, that increased estimate is treated as if it was the second period estimate submitted by the taxpayer. This is relevant when assessing whether a provisional taxpayer is liable for a penalty for underestimating taxable income (see 4.4.2(b)) that is only levied if the second period estimate is less than specified amounts.

4.3.2 Penalties

The Act provides for certain penalties to be levied when taxpayers fail to comply with provisional tax obligations. The only penalty applicable to the first period is the penalty levied for the late payment of provisional tax.

The penalties applicable to the second period (that is, the penalty for late payment, for underestimating taxable income and for failure to submit an estimate timeously) are discussed in 4.4.2.

(a) Penalty for the late payment of provisional tax

A penalty of 10% will be imposed on the late payment of provisional tax for the first period.⁵³ The penalty of 10% is calculated on the amount of provisional tax not paid. For example, if an amount of R2 000 was not paid or is paid late, the penalty that is charged will be 10% of R2 000, that is, R200.

The Commissioner may remit all or a portion of the penalty under the provisions of the TA Act⁵⁴ if satisfied that –

- reasonable grounds exist for the late payment;
- the non-compliance has been remedied, that is, the full amount of the provisional tax due has been paid in full; and
- either –
 - the penalty was imposed for a first incidence of non-compliance; or
 - the amount of the penalty involved was less than R2 000.

This penalty, or a relevant portion of the penalty, will also be remitted if the taxpayer is able to satisfy SARS that “exceptional circumstances” rendered the taxpayer incapable of complying with the obligation to make payment of provisional tax by the due date. The “exceptional circumstances”⁵⁵ may be grouped into the following categories:

- External factors, namely, a natural or human-made disaster or a civil disturbance or disruption in services.

⁵⁰ In such cases, the provisions of paragraphs 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(b) will be applicable and will be subject to the provisions of paragraph 19(3).

⁵¹ Paragraph 19(2).

⁵² Paragraph 19(3).

⁵³ Paragraph 27, read with Chapter 15 of the TA Act.

⁵⁴ Under section 217(3) of the TA Act.

⁵⁵ As set out in section 218(2) of the TA Act.

- Personal factors, namely, a serious illness or accident; serious emotional or mental distress; or serious financial hardship (for example, in the case of a business, the risk to continuity of business operations along with continued employment of employees or for an individual, the lack of basic living requirements).
- Acts by SARS, namely, a capturing error, a processing delay, provision of incorrect information in an official publication or media release, delay in providing information to any person or a failure to provide sufficient time for an adequate response to a request for information.
- Other circumstances of comparable seriousness.

The decision by SARS not to remit all or a part of the penalty is subject to objection and appeal.⁵⁶

4.3.3 Interest

The interest provisions in the TA Act are not yet effective. Accordingly, interest which may be imposed under the provisional tax regime is still levied under the provisions in the Act. The only interest which is charged in respect of the first period is when provisional tax is overdue, that is, the payment is late.

Interest applicable to the second period (that is, interest for late payment or the underestimate of provisional tax) is discussed in 4.4.3.

(a) Interest on overdue payments

Interest is levied at the prescribed rate when the first provisional tax payment is not paid in full within the period prescribed for payment.⁵⁷ The prescribed rate is the rate of interest fixed by the Minister of Finance by notice in the Gazette under the Public Finance Management Act, 1999. The prescribed rate may vary over time. A list of the prescribed rates applicable for different periods of time is available on www.sars.gov.za.

The interest is determined on the amount of provisional tax that remains unpaid and is calculated from the end of the period in which payment should have been made until the date payment is made. For example, if provisional tax of R500 is due on 31 August and the amount is only paid on 14 October, interest at the prescribed rate will be levied for the period 1 September up to and including 14 October.

The Commissioner may, at the Commissioner's discretion, waive the interest levied depending on the circumstances of the case.⁵⁸

4.4 The second period – estimates of taxable income, penalties and interest

4.4.1 Estimates of taxable income

For the second period, a provisional taxpayer is required to submit a return to the Commissioner which includes an estimate of the total taxable income that will be derived by the taxpayer in the year of assessment (second period estimate). The amount of the second provisional tax payment is based on this estimate (see 4.2.1 and 4.2.2).

⁵⁶ Section 220 of the TA Act.

⁵⁷ Under section 89*bis*(2). See 4.2.1, 4.2.2 and 4.2.3 for detail on the period prescribed for payment.

⁵⁸ Section 89*bis*(2).

In relation to the first period, the estimate of taxable income cannot be less than the “basic amount” unless the Commissioner agrees to accept a lower amount (see 4.3.1). This limitation does not apply to the second period estimate and a provisional taxpayer is free to determine that the second period estimate is equal to the basic amount for the second period or to another amount which is more or less than the basic amount. See 4.3.1 for the principles applicable to the estimate of taxable income and the calculation of the basic amount, these principles, including the Commissioner’s ability to estimate or increase estimates of taxable income, are also applicable to the second period. Practically, because the second period estimate is made at or close to the end of the year of assessment it means that a taxpayer is often in a position to make a relatively accurate estimate of taxable income for the year of assessment concerned and does not base the second period estimate on the basic amount. The basic amount for the second period remains relevant in the determination of the possible penalty for underestimating taxable income (see 4.4.2(b)) even if it is not used in determining the second period estimate.

4.4.2 Penalties

Three penalties are potentially levied in respect of the second period:

- Penalty for the late payment of provisional tax;⁵⁹
- Penalty for underestimating taxable income;⁶⁰ and
- Penalty for failing to submit an estimate timeously.⁶¹

(a) Penalty for the late payment of provisional tax

The penalty for the late payment of provisional tax in the first period is discussed in 4.3.2(a). The penalty is calculated and applied in exactly the same manner for the second period.

(b) Penalty for underestimating taxable income

A penalty⁶² may be levied when the actual taxable income as finally determined is more than the taxable income estimated on the second provisional tax return. The calculation of the potential penalty depends on whether actual taxable income is more than R1 million or whether actual taxable income is equal to or less than R1 million.⁶³

In the case of a provisional taxpayer that is not a company, the penalty for underestimating taxable income will not apply if the Commissioner increased the taxpayer’s second period estimate of taxable income under paragraph 19(3).⁶⁴ In the case of a company, the penalty may be levied if the increased estimate is less than the amounts detailed below (see 4.3.1).

⁵⁹ Paragraph 27.

⁶⁰ Paragraph 20.

⁶¹ Paragraph 20A.

⁶² Paragraph 20(1). The penalty is deemed to be a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the TA Act. The procedures for imposing and for requesting the remittance of the penalty, in sections 214 and 215 of the TA Act, respectively, thus apply to this penalty.

⁶³ “Any other case” in paragraph 20(1)(b) refers to an amount of actual taxable income which is not more than R1 million, that is, the amount is equal to or less than R1 million.

⁶⁴ Paragraph 20(3).

Actual taxable income is more than R1 million

A penalty will be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income is less than 80% of actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment. The amount of the penalty is 20% of the difference between the amount of normal tax calculated at the rates applicable for the year of assessment on 80% of actual taxable income, and the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax paid by the end of the year of assessment.

The amount of normal tax calculated at the rates applicable for the year of assessment is before the deduction of any applicable rebates.

Lump sum benefits and severance benefits are not taken into account when calculating this penalty.

Actual taxable income is equal to or less than R1 million

A penalty will be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income is less than –

- 90% of actual taxable income as finally determined; and
- the basic amount applicable to the second period.

In applying these criteria, a penalty will not be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income was greater than the applicable basic amount.

The amount of the penalty is 20% of the difference between the lesser of –

- the amount of normal tax calculated at the rates applicable for the year of assessment on 90% of the actual taxable income as finally determined; and
- the amount of normal tax calculated at the rates applicable for the year of assessment on the basic amount applicable to the second period, and the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax paid by the end of the year of assessment.

The amount of normal tax calculated at the rates applicable for the year of assessment is before the deduction of any applicable rebates.

Lump sum benefits and severance benefits are not taken into account when calculating this penalty.

Example 3 – Penalty on underestimation*Facts:*

Y is a natural person. As a provisional taxpayer Y was required to submit provisional tax returns for the 2014 year of assessment. Y's basic amount, based on the notice of assessment for the 2013 year of assessment, was R300 000. Y expected taxable income to be less than the basic amount because of poor trading conditions and, with SARS' permission, submitted first and second period estimates of taxable income of R200 000 for the year.

On assessment, Y's taxable income was finally determined as R280 000. No employees' tax was paid during the year. Y paid provisional tax during the year of R38 408.

Result:

Y's estimate of R200 000 was less than 90% of taxable income as finally determined ($R280\,000 \times 90\% = R252\,000$) and less than the basic amount (R300 000). Y is liable for a penalty at the rate of 20% on the difference between the lesser of normal tax calculated on –

- 90% of taxable income (that is, tax on R252 000 = R51 408); and
- the basic amount (tax on R300 000 = R65 471), and the total provisional and employee's tax paid during the 2014 year of assessment (R38 408).

The penalty payable for the underestimation of provisional tax is therefore R2 600 [$20\% \times (R51\,408 - R38\,408)$].

Possible remission of all or a part of the penalty for underestimating taxable income

Taxpayers may apply to the Commissioner to reduce the penalty, as calculated above, for underestimating taxable income. The Commissioner may remit all or part of the penalty if the Commissioner is satisfied or partly satisfied that the second period estimate of taxable income –

- was seriously calculated with due regard to any factors having a bearing on it; and
- was not deliberately or negligently understated.⁶⁵

The word “serious”, from which the word “seriously” is derived, is not defined in the Act and accordingly the term must be given its ordinary grammatical meaning. “Serious” is defined in the Concise Oxford English Dictionary⁶⁶ to mean:

“Demanding or characterised by careful consideration or application. Solemn or thoughtful. 2. Sincere and in earnest.”

The Collins English Dictionary⁶⁷ defines the word “serious” to mean:

“Grave in nature or disposition; thoughtful. 4. Requiring effort or concentration.”

“Seriously” modifies the verb “calculate” by describing the degree to which a taxpayer must go in calculating the estimate. Thus, the calculation must be one which has been carefully considered and is thoughtful, earnest and sincere. A taxpayer must therefore have sensibly (and by careful reasoning and judgment, in a mathematical manner, and using experience, common sense and all available information) determined the amount of the estimate before the Commissioner is able to reduce a penalty.

Provisional taxpayers who merely rely on the basic amount to estimate the second period amount of taxable income are unlikely to meet the requirements for a reduction in the penalty for underestimating taxable income. The reason therefore is that, as noted above, the Commissioner is only entitled to reduce or remit the penalty if, amongst other requirements, he is satisfied that the estimate was “seriously calculated". In the absence of particular facts and circumstances which demonstrate that the use of the basic amount was actively considered and was appropriate under the circumstances, this requirement will not be met.

The decision not to reduce the penalty is subject to objection and appeal.⁶⁸

See 4.3.2(a) for additional circumstances under which the Commissioner may remit all or part of a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the TA Act.

(c) Penalty for the failure to submit an estimate timeously

A penalty is levied in the event that a taxpayer fails to submit an estimate of taxable income timeously.⁶⁹ Provisional taxpayers must estimate taxable income for the year, record it on an IRP6 return and submit the return to SARS on or before the last day of the year of assessment.

The amount of the penalty to be levied is 20% of the difference between –

- the normal tax payable on actual taxable income; and
- the sum of –
 - any provisional tax paid within any period allowed under the Fourth Schedule of the Act in respect of that year; and
 - the employees' tax paid or withheld during the year.

Normal tax payable is after the deductions of applicable rebates.

No penalty is imposed if the Commissioner has estimated taxable income⁷⁰ or increased the amount of the estimate.⁷¹

The Commissioner may remit⁷² the whole or part of the penalty if satisfied that the late submission of the estimate was not because of an intent to evade or postpone liability for payment of normal tax or provisional tax.

The Commissioner's decision not to remit all or part of the penalty is subject to objection and appeal.⁷³

See 4.3.2(a) for additional circumstances under which the Commissioner may remit all or part of a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the TA Act.

4.4.3 Interest

In relation to the second period, interest is charged in two situations, namely, the –

- late payment of provisional tax, that is, the payment is overdue;⁷⁴ and
- underpayment of provisional tax.⁷⁵

⁶⁸ Section 3(4)(e).

⁶⁹ Paragraph 20A.

⁷⁰ Under paragraph 19(2).

⁷¹ Under paragraph 19(3).

⁷² Paragraph 20A(2).

⁷³ Section 220 of the TA Act.

⁷⁴ Levied under section 89*bis*.

⁷⁵ Levied under section 89*quat*.

In contrast, SARS is required to pay the provisional taxpayer interest if there is an overpayment of provisional tax.

(a) Interest on the late payment of provisional tax

The interest which is charged if provisional tax is overdue in the first period is discussed in 4.3.3. The calculation for interest charged if provisional tax is overdue in the second period is performed in same manner – see 4.3.3 for detail.

(b) Interest on the underpayment of provisional tax

Interest is levied at the prescribed rate on the underpayment of provisional tax⁷⁶ from the effective date until the date of assessment of normal tax if actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment exceeds:

- (i) R20 000, in the case of a company; or
- (ii) R50 000, in any other case.

An underpayment arises if the normal tax payable on actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment exceeds the credit amount.⁷⁷

Normal tax payable is after any applicable rebates and for purposes of calculating interest on the underpayment of provisional tax includes the additional amount⁷⁸ payable on the underestimation of the second period estimate of taxable income (see 4.4.2(b)), the penalty for the failure to submit the second period estimate timeously (see 4.4.2(c)) and the understatement penalty under section 222 of the TA Act.

The “credit amount”⁷⁹ means the sum of –

- all provisional tax paid in respect of the year (first, second and third periods);
- employees’ tax paid or withheld during the year; and
- foreign tax credits that qualify as a rebate under section 6quat.

The “effective date” in relation to any year of assessment is –

- if the provisional taxpayer is a company which has a year of assessment ending on the last day of February or is a person (other than a company) who has not been granted permission to render accounts for a period ending on a date other than the last day of February, the date falling seven months after the last day of such year; or
- in any other case, the date falling six months after the last day of such year.

⁷⁷ Section 89quat(2).

⁷⁸ Definition of the term “normal tax” section 89quat(1) and section 12(1) of Interpretation Act No. 33, 1957.

⁷⁹ As defined in section 89quat(1).

Example 4 – Interest on underestimation*Facts:*

Z's year of assessment ends on the last day of February each year. Z's notice of assessment for the 2014 year of assessment is dated 1 January 2015. Z's final tax liability for the year, on taxable income of R280 000 is R47 391 (R59 471 normal tax – R12 080 primary rebate). Z made provisional tax payments for the first and second periods amounting to R20 000 and also paid employees' tax of R10 000. Z made a third payment of provisional tax of R12 000 on 28 September 2014. The prescribed rate of interest is, for the purposes of this example, 9,5% per year.

Result:

Z will be liable for section 89*quat* interest on the underpayment of provisional tax from 1 October 2014 up to and including 31 December 2014 on the amount by which the final tax liability exceeds the credit amount. Z's credit amount is R42 000 (R20 000 + R10 000+ R12 000), and the tax shortfall is therefore R5 391 (R47 391 less R42 000). The interest payable on the underestimation of provisional tax is R129,09 ($R5\,391 \times 9,5\% \times 92 / 365$, for October, November and December).

The Commissioner is authorised to direct that all or a portion of the interest not be paid if –

- (a) it is a natural person's first year of assessment as a provisional taxpayer and the Commissioner is satisfied that the circumstances warrant it;⁸⁰ or
- (b) the Commissioner, after considering the facts of a specific case, is satisfied that the interest payable is a result of circumstances beyond the control of the taxpayer.⁸¹

The Commissioner's decision in this regard is subject to objection and appeal.⁸²

(c) Interest received on the overpayment of provisional tax

Interest is payable by SARS to a provisional taxpayer if that provisional taxpayer has overpaid provisional tax.⁸³ Provisional tax is considered to be overpaid if the credit amount⁸⁴ exceeds the normal tax payable as defined in 4.4.3(b) on actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment, and –

- that excess amount is more than R10 000; or
- actual taxable income is more than R20 000 in the case of a company, or R50 000 in the case of a person other than a company.

The interest that is payable to the taxpayer is calculated at the prescribed rate on the difference between the credit amount and the normal tax. It is calculated from the effective date⁸⁵ until the date on which the difference is refunded to the taxpayer.

4.5 The third period – estimates of or actual taxable income, penalties and interest

4.5.1 Estimates of taxable income

A voluntary provisional tax payment can be made in respect of the third period. The payment is generally not determined through an estimation of taxable income but is instead based on actual taxable income for the year as this figure is often known to the provisional taxpayer when making the top-up payment.

4.5.2 Penalties

No penalties are levied in respect of the third period.

4.5.3 Interest

Interest will be levied at the prescribed rate from the effective date until the date of payment if the top-up payment is paid after the effective date.⁸⁶

5. Conclusion

Provisional tax is a method used to collect normal tax which will ultimately be payable for a particular year of assessment during the year. There are potentially three payments, two of which are compulsory. The first compulsory payment must be made within the first period which ends six months after the start of the year of assessment. The second compulsory payment must be made on or before the end of the second period which ends on the last day of the year of assessment. A third payment, which is voluntary, must (in most cases) be made within seven months of the end of the year of assessment.

The calculation of the amount of a provisional tax payment involves estimating taxable income for the year concerned. Depending on which payment (first, second or third) and on the facts and circumstances of the case, certain penalties may be imposed and interest levied if the estimates are not accurate.

Annexure – The law

Section 89bis – Payments of employees' tax and provisional tax and interest on overdue payments of such taxes

(1) Payments by way of employees' tax and provisional tax shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule and shall be made at such place as may be notified by the Commissioner, and any such payments which relate to a taxpayer shall, for the purposes of this Act and subject to the provisions of paragraph 28 of the said Schedule, be deemed to have been made in respect of his liability for taxes as defined in subsection (3), whether or not such liability has been ascertained or determined at the date of any payment.

(2) If any amount of employees' tax is not paid in full within the period of seven days prescribed for payment of such amount by paragraph 2(1) of the Fourth Schedule, or if any amount of provisional tax is not paid in full within the relevant period prescribed for payment of such amount by paragraph 21, 22, 23, 23A or 25(1) of that Schedule, interest shall, unless the Commissioner having regard to the circumstances of the case otherwise directs, be paid by the person liable to pay the amount in question at the prescribed rate (but subject to the provisions of section 89quin) on so much of such amount as remains unpaid in respect of the period (reckoned from the end of the relevant period prescribed as aforesaid for payment of such amount) during which the amount underpaid remains unpaid.

(3) For the purposes of this section "taxes" means the taxes comprehended in the definition of "tax" in section 1, excluding donations tax.

(b)

Section 89quat – Interest on underpayments and overpayments of provisional tax

(1) For the purposes of this section—

"credit amount", in relation to any year of assessment of any provisional taxpayer, means the sum of—

- (a) the provisional tax paid by the taxpayer under the provisions of paragraph 21 or 23 of the Fourth Schedule in respect of such year;
- (b) any additional provisional tax paid by the taxpayer in respect of such year under the provisions of paragraph 23A of that Schedule;
- (c) any amounts of employees tax deducted or withheld by the taxpayer's employer during such year; and
- (d) any amount of foreign taxes which may be deducted from the tax payable by such taxpayer in respect of the relevant year of assessment in respect of the provisions of section 6quat;

"effective date", in relation to any year of assessment of a provisional taxpayer, means—

- (a) where the provisional taxpayer is a company which has a year of assessment which ends on the last day of February or is a person (other than a company) who has not been granted permission by the Commissioner under the provisions of section 66(13A) to render accounts for a period ending on a date other than the last day of February, the date falling seven months after the last day of such year; or
- (b) in any other case, the date falling six months after the last day of such year as applicable for the purposes of the provisions of paragraph 21 or 23 of the Fourth Schedule;

"normal tax" includes any additional amounts payable in respect of section 76 and paragraphs 20 and 20A of the Fourth Schedule.

(2) If the taxable income of any provisional taxpayer as finally determined for any year of assessment exceeds—

- (a) R20 000 in the case of a company; or
- (b) R50 000 in the case of any person other than a company, and the normal tax payable by him in respect of such taxable income exceeds the credit amount in relation to such year, interest shall, subject to the provisions of subsection (3), be payable by the taxpayer at the prescribed rate on the amount by which such normal tax exceeds the credit amount, such interest being calculated from the effective date in relation to the said year until the date of assessment of such normal tax.

(3) Where the Commissioner having regard to the circumstances of the case is satisfied that the interest payable in respect of subsection (2) is a result of circumstances beyond the control of the taxpayer, the Commissioner may direct that interest shall not be paid in whole or in part by the taxpayer.

(3A) Where any natural person has, in respect of the year of assessment during which he for the first time became a provisional taxpayer, become liable for the payment of interest under subsection (2), the Commissioner may, subject to the provisions of section 103(6), if he is satisfied that the circumstances warrant such action, direct that interest shall not be paid by such person in respect of such year of assessment.

(4) If in the case of any provisional taxpayer the credit amount in relation to any year of assessment exceeds the normal tax payable in respect of his taxable income as finally determined for that year and—

- (a) the amount of that excess exceeds R10 000; or
- (b) such taxable income exceeds—
 - (i) R20 000 in the case of a company; or
 - (ii) R50 000 in the case of any person other than a company, interest shall be payable to the taxpayer at the prescribed rate on the difference between the credit amount and such normal tax, such interest being calculated from the effective date in relation to the said year until the date on which such difference is refunded to the taxpayer: Provided that where any interest is payable to the taxpayer on any amount in respect of any period in respect of the provisions of section 88, no interest shall be payable to the taxpayer in respect of the provisions of this subsection in respect of the said amount and period.

(5) Any decision of the Commissioner in the exercise of his discretion under subsection (3) or (3A) shall be subject to objection and appeal.

(6) The payment by the Commissioner of any interest under the provisions of this section shall be deemed to be a drawback from revenue charged to the National Revenue Fund.

The Fourth Schedule

Paragraph 1 – Definition

“provisional tax” means any payment required to be made in terms of paragraph 17;

- (b) any company; and
- (c) any person who is notified by the Commissioner that he or she is a provisional taxpayer,

but shall exclude—

- (dd) a person exempt from payment of provisional tax in terms of paragraph 18.

Paragraph 17 – Payment of provisional tax

17. (1) Every provisional taxpayer shall in the manner provided in this Part make payments (called provisional tax) to the Commissioner in respect of his liability for normal tax in respect of every year of assessment.

(3) Where for the purpose of determining any amount of provisional tax required to be paid by any provisional taxpayer in respect of any year of assessment the liability of such taxpayer for normal tax is required to be estimated in respect of such year, such liability shall be deemed to be the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the relevant rate referred to in subparagraph (4), would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income estimated by such taxpayer in terms of paragraph 19(1) during the period prescribed by this Schedule for the payment of the said amount of provisional tax, or any extension of such period granted in terms of paragraph 25(2), or if the amount so estimated has been increased by the Commissioner in terms of paragraph 19(3), the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the said rate, would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income as so increased, or if the Commissioner has estimated the provisional taxpayer’s taxable income in terms of paragraph 19(2), the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the said rate, would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income so estimated.

(4) For the purposes of any calculation of normal tax under subparagraph (3) the rate at which such tax is to be calculated shall be the relevant rate which on the date of payment of the provisional tax in question is in force in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which such provisional tax is required to be paid under this Schedule, or if at the said date the rate has not been fixed, the relevant rate in respect of that year foreshadowed by the Minister of Finance in his budget statement, or if at that date the rate has not been fixed or so foreshadowed, the relevant rate which is in force in respect of the latest preceding year of assessment in respect of which rates have been fixed by Parliament.

(5) The Commissioner may from time to time, having regard to the rates of normal tax as fixed by Parliament or foreshadowed by the Minister in his or her budget statement or at the rebates applicable in terms of section 6(2) of this Act and taking into account any other factors having a bearing upon the probable liability of taxpayers for normal tax, prescribe tables for optional use by provisional taxpayers falling within any category specified by the Commissioner, or by provisional taxpayers generally, for the purpose of estimating the liability of such taxpayers for normal tax, and the Commissioner may prescribe the manner in which such tables shall be applied together with the period for which such tables shall remain in force.

(7) The provisions of subparagraphs (3) and (4) shall not apply where the liability of a provisional taxpayer for normal tax is estimated in accordance with any tables prescribed for his use under the provisions of subparagraph (5) and not withdrawn under the provisions of subparagraph (6).

(8) Every person who is a provisional taxpayer shall apply to the Commissioner for registration as a provisional taxpayer in accordance with Chapter 3 of the Tax Administration Act.

Paragraph 18 – Exemptions

18. (1) There shall be exempt from payment of provisional tax—

- (a)
- (b) any person in respect of whose liability for normal tax for the relevant year of assessment payments are required to be made under section thirty-three of this Act;
- (c) any natural person who on the last day of that year will be below the age of 65 years and who does not derive any income from the carrying on of any business, if—
 - (i) the taxable income of that person for the relevant year of assessment will not exceed the tax threshold; or
 - (ii) the taxable income of that person for the relevant year of assessment which is derived from interest, foreign dividends and rental from the letting of fixed property will not exceed R20 000;
- (d) any natural person who on the last day of the year of assessment will be 65 years or older, if the Commissioner is satisfied that such person's taxable income for that year—
 - (i) will not exceed R120 000;
 - (ii) will not be derived wholly or in part from the carrying on of any business; and
 - (iii) will not be derived otherwise than from remuneration, interest, foreign dividends, or rental from the letting of fixed property.

(2) Any taxable capital gain of a company resulting from the application of the deemed disposal rules under section 29B of the Act for years of assessment ending on or after 29 February 2012 but not later than 31 October 2012, is exempt from provisional tax.

(5)

Paragraph 19 – Estimates of the taxable income to be made by provisional taxpayers

- (1)(a) Every provisional taxpayer (other than a company) shall, during every period within which provisional tax is or may be payable by that provisional taxpayer as provided in this Part, submit to the Commissioner (should the Commissioner so require) a return of an estimate of the total taxable income which will be derived by the taxpayer in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which provisional tax is or may be payable by the taxpayer: Provided that such estimate will not include any retirement fund lump sum benefit, retirement fund lump sum withdrawal benefit or any severance benefit received by or accrued to or to be received by or accrue to the taxpayer during the relevant year of assessment.
- (b) Every company which is a provisional taxpayer shall, during every period within which provisional tax is or may be payable by it as provided in this Part submit to the Commissioner (should the Commissioner so require) a return of an estimate of the total taxable income which will be derived by the company in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which provisional tax is or may be payable by the company.

- (c) The amount of any estimate so submitted by a provisional taxpayer (other than a company) during the period referred to in paragraph 21(1)(a), or by a company (as a provisional taxpayer) during the period referred to in paragraph 23(a), shall, unless the Commissioner, having regard to the circumstances of the case, agrees to accept an estimate of a lower amount, not be less than the basic amount applicable to the estimate in question, as contemplated in item (d).
- (d) The basic amount applicable to any estimate submitted by a provisional taxpayer under this paragraph shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, be deemed to be—
- (i) as respects an estimate submitted by a provisional taxpayer (other than a company) under item (a), the taxpayers' taxable income, as assessed by the Commissioner, for the latest preceding year of assessment in relation to such estimate, less—
 - (aa) the amount of any taxable capital gain included therein in respect of section 26A; and
 - (bb) the taxable portion of any retirement fund lump sum benefit, retirement fund lump sum withdrawal benefit or severance benefit, other than any amount included under paragraph (eA) of the definition of "gross income" in section 1;
 - (ii) as respects an estimate submitted by a company under item (b), the company's taxable income, as assessed by the Commissioner, for the latest preceding year of assessment in relation to such estimate, less the amount of any taxable capital gain included therein in respect of section 26A.
 - (iii)

Provided that, if an estimate under item (a) or (b) must be made—
