Preamble

In this Note unless the context indicates otherwise –

- “basic amount” means the amount described in paragraph 4.3.1;
- “paragraph” means a paragraph of the Fourth Schedule to the Act;
- “section” means a section of the Act;
- “the Act” means the Income Tax Act No. 58 of 1962;
- “TA Act” means the Tax Administration Act No. 28 of 2011; and
- any other word or expression bears the meaning ascribed to it in the Act.

1. Purpose

This Note provides guidance on the interpretation of the law relating to provisional tax and considers –

- who is a provisional taxpayer;
- the calculation of provisional tax including how estimates of taxable income must be made;
- the consequences of an incorrect or late submission of estimates;¹
- the consequences of a late payment of provisional tax; and
- the consequences of failure to submit an estimate on time.

2. Background

Employees who earn remuneration generally pay tax in the form of employees’ tax (PAYE) on a monthly basis. This results in the collection of an employee’s normal tax liability being spread throughout the year with a potential additional payment or a refund at the end of the year of assessment. However, for people who do not earn “remuneration” as defined in the Fourth Schedule, for example, a self-employed person earning business income, in the absence of a provisional tax system the full amount of tax would be payable only on assessment at the end of the year of assessment, without the option or obligation of making interim payments like those paying PAYE monthly.

Provisional tax is not a separate tax payable by certain persons. It is merely a method used to collect normal tax,² that will ultimately be payable for the year of assessment concerned, during the year. Otherwise stated, provisional tax is an advance payment of a taxpayer's normal tax liability. A provisional taxpayer is generally required to make two provisional tax payments, one six months into the year of assessment and one at the end of the year of assessment, but has the option to make an additional payment, generally known as the third or top-up payment, after the end of the year of assessment.

Provisional tax payments are calculated on estimated taxable income (which includes taxable capital gains) for the particular year of assessment.³ These estimates of taxable income are submitted to SARS on an IRP6 return. The returns, which can be obtained through e-Filing, the SARS contact centre or a SARS branch office, must be submitted even if the amount of the provisional tax payment is nil. The normal tax payable on the estimated taxable income is calculated at the relevant rate of tax that is in force on the date of payment of provisional tax. This would generally be the rate of tax as prescribed in the tax tables which are fixed annually by Parliament.⁴ The Commissioner may, from time to time, prescribe alternative tax tables for optional use by provisional taxpayers falling within a certain category.⁵

Provisional tax payments may not be refunded⁶ or reallocated to different periods or different taxpayers. However, at the end of the year of assessment the provisional tax payments, together with any PAYE withheld during the year, are set off against the taxpayer's liability for normal tax. Any excess of provisional tax and PAYE over the liability for normal tax is refunded to the taxpayer⁷ and any shortfall is payable by the taxpayer to SARS. Interest is generally payable from the effective date,⁸ by SARS in the case of a refund and by the taxpayer in the case of a shortfall.

There are certain rules that must be adhered to when making estimates of taxable income for provisional tax purposes. Certain penalties and interest will be imposed if the estimates are inaccurate or if the submission of the estimates or the payment of provisional tax is late. This Note discusses these rules and the interest and penalties which may be imposed.

⁸ See 4.4.3(b) for the definition of effective date.

4. Application of the law

4.1 Who is liable to pay provisional tax?

A provisional taxpayer⁹ is –

- (a) any person (other than a company) who earns income which does not constitute remuneration¹⁰ or an allowance or advance¹¹ (such as a travelling allowance, subsistence allowance and public officer allowance);
- (b) any company; and
- (c) any person notified by the Commissioner that he or she is a provisional taxpayer,

but excluding the following persons:¹²

- (i) Any approved public benefit organisation;¹³
- (ii) Any approved recreational club;¹⁴
- (iii) Any body corporate, share block company or association of persons contemplated in section 10(1)(e);
- (iv) A small business funding entity;
- (v) A deceased estate;¹⁵
- (vi) Non-resident owners or charterers of ships or aircraft within the ambit of section 33; and
- (vii) Any natural person who does not derive income from the carrying on of any business,¹⁶ if that person's taxable income for that year of assessment –¹⁷
 - (aa) will not exceed the annual tax threshold;¹⁸ or
 - (bb) which is derived from interest, dividends, foreign dividends and rental from the letting of fixed property will be R30 000 or less.

A person earning only remuneration (such as salary, wages, bonuses and pension) would generally pay tax on a monthly basis in the form of PAYE. Accordingly, that person would not be a provisional taxpayer, which is reasonable given that the appropriate normal tax should be collected through the PAYE system and not through provisional tax.

¹⁷ This requirement was different for natural persons below 65 years of age or 65 years or older for years of assessment commencing before 1 March 2015.

¹⁸ The term "tax threshold" is defined in paragraph 1 and means the maximum amount of taxable income of a person during a year of assessment that would result in no tax being payable by that person taking into account the applicable normal rates of tax and the rebates available in section 6. The tax thresholds change annually and differ for persons under the age of 65, persons 65 years of age and older and persons 75 years of age and older.

There is no requirement to register as a provisional taxpayer.¹⁹ A taxpayer who is a provisional taxpayer as defined must request an IRP6 provisional tax return on e-Filing, from the SARS contact centre or from a SARS branch office, complete it and submit it, along with any payment required, within the required periods.

4.2 When is provisional tax payable and how is it calculated?

In the context of provisional tax it is particularly important to note that if –

- a day notified by SARS or specified in the Act for payment, submission or other action; or
- the last day of a period within which payment, submission or other action under the Act must be made,

falls on a Saturday, Sunday or public holiday, the action must be done not later than the last business day before the Saturday, Sunday or public holiday.²⁰

4.2.1 Provisional taxpayers other than companies

Provisional tax is payable three times in respect of a year of assessment:²¹

- (i) The first period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending six months from the start of the taxpayer's year of assessment. This means that for a year of assessment that starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the first period for which provisional tax becomes due will be the period ending on 31 August. The first provisional tax payment must be made on or before the last business day of that period. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay half of the estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The first provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:²²

	R
Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Primary, secondary and tertiary rebates under section 6	(XXXX)
Less: Tax credit for medical scheme fees under section 6A	(XXXX)
Less: Additional medical expenses tax credit under section 6B	(XXXX)
Less: Foreign tax credit under section 6quin ²³	(XXXX)
Total tax payable (A)	XXXX

¹⁹ Definition of "provisional taxpayer" in paragraph 1 read with paragraph 19 and section 22 of the TA Act.

²⁰ Section 244(1) of the TA Act.

²¹ Paragraph 21, read with paragraph 23A.

²³ The rebate available under section 6quin was deleted for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2016.

Half of the normal tax payable on estimated taxable income (A / 2)	XX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the first period	(X)
Less: Foreign tax credits under section 6 quat proved to be payable by the end of the first period	(X)
First provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (ii) The second period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. This means that for a year of assessment which starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the second period for which provisional tax becomes due will be the period ending on 28 February or 29 February, as appropriate. The second provisional tax payment must be made on or before the last business day of the year of assessment in question. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The second provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:²⁴

	R
Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Primary, secondary and tertiary rebates under section 6	(XXXX)
Less: Tax credit for medical scheme fees under section 6A	(XXXX)

Second provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (iii) The third period for which the payment of provisional tax can be made²⁶ is for the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment but payment must be made not later than seven months after the end of that year of assessment in order to reduce possible interest.²⁷ This means that for a year of assessment which starts on 1 March and ends on 28 February or 29 February, the third provisional tax payment must be made by ²⁴ Effective calculation applying paragraph 21(1)(b) and paragraph 17.

²⁵ The rebate available under section 6*quin* was deleted for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2016.

²⁷ Paragraph 23A read with section 89*quat*.

30 September in order to reduce the provisional taxpayer's exposure to interest payable. The payment is commonly referred to as a "top-up payment" and is voluntary. Paragraph 23A refers to the payment as an "additional payment of provisional tax". Unlike with the first and second period, the payment is generally not determined through an estimation of taxable income but is based on actual taxable income for the year as this figure is often known to the provisional taxpayer when making the top-up payment. The top-up payment is a mechanism which assists the taxpayer to avoid or reduce the imposition of interest on underpayments of provisional tax, but is not taken into account in the calculation of the penalty for underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation which takes into account only provisional tax payments made by the end of the year [see 4.4.2(b)]. The top-up payment is calculated as follows:

	R
Estimated/actual taxable income for the year of assessment	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated/actual taxable income	XXXX
Less: Primary, secondary and tertiary rebates under section 6	(XXXX)
Less: Tax credit for medical scheme fees under section 6A	(XXXX)

Less: First provisional tax payment (if actually paid)	(X)
Less: Second provisional tax payment (if actually paid)	(X)
Less: Other provisional tax top-up payments (if any, if actually paid)	(X)

Top-up payment	XXXX

A person other than a company may apply to SARS for permission to draw accounts to a date falling after the end of the year of assessment.²⁹ An approved application will have the following effect on provisional tax:

- The dates for the first and second periods will be as prescribed by the Commissioner and may accordingly differ to the dates discussed above.³⁰

²⁸ The rebate available under section 6*quin* was deleted for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2016.

²⁹ Section 66(13A).

³⁰ Paragraph 21(2). Subject to objection and appeal under section 3(4)(e), read with section 104 of the TA Act.

- Top-up payment payments must be paid by not later than 6 months after the end of the year of assessment (as opposed to the 7-month period referred to above).³¹

4.2.2 Provisional taxpayers who are companies

Provisional tax is payable three times during the year of assessment:

- (i) The first period³² for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending six months from the start of the company's year of assessment. Payment must be made on or before the end of this period. In other words, if the company's financial year begins on 1 June, the first period will be the period ending on 30 November of that year and payment must be made on or before 30 November. The company is required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay half of the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The first provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:³³

Estimated taxable income for the year of assessment
Less: Foreign tax credit under section 6quin ³⁴	XXXX
Normal tax on estimated taxable income (A)	XXXX
Half of the normal tax payable on estimated taxable income (A / 2)	XX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the first period ³⁵	(X)
Less: Foreign tax credits under section 6quat proved to be payable by the end of the first period	(X)
First provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (ii) The second period for which the payment of provisional tax becomes due, is the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. Payment must be made on or before the last day of the year of assessment. Accordingly, if the company has a financial year-end of 31 May, the second period for purposes of provisional tax will be the period ending on 31 May and payment must be made on or before this date. The taxpayer will be required to estimate taxable income for that year of assessment and pay the total estimated liability for normal tax less certain payments already made. The second provisional tax payment is calculated as follows:³⁶

³¹ Paragraph 23A, read with section 89quat.

³² Paragraph 23.

³³ Effective calculation applying paragraph 23 and paragraph 17.

³⁴ The rebate available under section 6quin was deleted for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2016.

³⁵ This calculation is calculating the company's first provisional tax payment and therefore this item refers to employees tax that might have been deducted from payments made to the company and not to employees tax which the company may have withheld from, for example, salary payments to its employees.

³⁶ Effective calculation applying the paragraph 23 and paragraph 17.

Normal tax on estimated taxable income	XXXX
Less: Employees' tax deducted from the provisional taxpayer's remuneration during the year	(X)
Less: First provisional tax payment (if actually paid)	(X)
Less: Foreign tax credits (that is, foreign taxes that qualify under for a rebate under section 6quat and section 6quin ³⁷) for the year	(X)
Second provisional tax payment	XXXX

- (iii) The third period for which payment can be made is for the period ending on the last day of the year of assessment. However, payment must be made not later than seven months after the end of the year of assessment if the company's year of assessment ends on the last day of February, otherwise the payment must be made not later than six months after the end of the year of assessment, in order to reduce possible interest. For companies, the end of the year of assessment is the financial year-end. For example, if the financial year-end of the company is 31 May, the top-up payment would need to be made by 30 November to reduce possible interest.

4.2.3 Additional information relating to the payment of provisional tax

The Commissioner may release a provisional taxpayer from making a first provisional tax payment if the Commissioner is satisfied that the provisional taxpayer's taxable income for the year of assessment concerned cannot be estimated based on the available facts at the time the payment should be made.³⁹ The Commissioner's decision is subject to objection and appeal.⁴⁰

4.3 The first period – estimates of taxable income, penalties and interest

4.3.1 Estimates of taxable income

For the first period, a provisional taxpayer is required to submit a return to the Commissioner which includes an estimate of the total taxable income (estimate) that will be derived by the taxpayer in the relevant year of assessment.⁴¹ The amount of the first provisional tax payment is based on this estimate (see 4.2.1 and 4.2.2). The return must be submitted even if the amount of the provisional tax payment is nil.

Taxable income is equal to gross income less exempt income less all amounts allowed to be deducted or set off⁴² plus all amounts included or deemed to be included in taxable income under the Act, for example, the amount of taxable capital gains.

An estimate must include taxable capital gains made or that are anticipated to be made during the year of assessment. This includes situations where, in the first period, there is a reasonable expectation that a taxable capital gain will be made during the second period.

For persons other than companies, the estimate must exclude the taxable portion of lump sum benefits⁴³ and severance benefits⁴⁴ received by or accrued to (or to be received by or accrue to) the taxpayer during the year of assessment.

The amount of the estimate cannot be less than the "basic amount" unless the circumstances of the case justify the submission of an estimate of a lower amount.⁴⁵ The "basic amount" is the taxable income assessed for the latest preceding year of assessment, less any taxable capital gain included therein and, for persons other than a company, any taxable portion of a lump sum benefit or severance benefit, other than any amount included under paragraph (eA) of the definition of "gross income".⁴⁶ Also excluded are any amounts (other than severance benefits) contemplated in paragraph (d) of the definition of "gross income".

The obligation under paragraph 19 is to submit an estimate of the total taxable income for the year of assessment. The use of the basic amount may or may not fulfill this requirement depending on the facts of the particular case. For example, if a provisional taxpayer realised a capital gain during the current year the use of the basic amount is likely to be inappropriate if the capital gain is significant. Similarly the use of the basic amount, with or without the escalation referred to in the proviso to paragraph 19(1)(d), may not be appropriate if the provisional taxpayer has introduced a new line of business. The use of the basic amount may have an impact on possible penalties for the underpayment of provisional tax – see 4.4.2(b).

The “latest preceding year of assessment”⁴⁷ means the latest of the years of assessment –⁴⁸

- preceding the year of assessment for which the estimate is made, and
- for which a notice of assessment⁴⁹ was issued by the Commissioner 14 calendar days⁵⁰ or more before the date on which the estimate was submitted to the Commissioner.

The basic amount must be increased by 8% of the basic amount per year if an estimate is made more than 18 months after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment.⁵¹

The 8% escalation is added for each year from the end of the latest preceding year of assessment to the end of the year of assessment for which the estimate is made. The escalation is calculated on a simple basis, not on a compound basis.

The addition of the 18-month rule, effective from 1 October 2012, will have the effect that taxpayers who are reasonably up to date with the submission of tax returns will not be subject to the 8% per year escalation on the basic amounts used for the first provisional tax payment.

Example 1 – Determining whether to increase the basic amount

Facts:

X’s year of assessment ends on 28 February each year. X submitted a first period provisional tax estimate for the 2016 year of assessment on 31 August 2015. A notice of assessment was issued to X for the 2015 year of assessment on 18 August 2015. X’s taxable income for the 2015 year of assessment was R210 000. A notice of assessment for the 2014 year of assessment was issued on 31 July 2014. X’s taxable income as assessed in 2014 was R150 000. X did not have any taxable capital gains or retirement or severance related lump sums in 2014.

Result:

X’s latest preceding year of assessment is 2014 because it is the latest year of assessment for which X was issued a notice of assessment 14 days or more from the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted. X’s 2015 assessment is not the latest year of assessment and cannot be used to calculate the basic amount as the notice of assessment was issued less than 14 days before the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted.

⁴⁷ Paragraph 19(1)(e).

⁴⁸ As provided in paragraph 19(1)(e).

⁴⁹ Depending on the circumstances this could be a notice applicable to an original, reduced or additional assessment. The latest notice of assessment issued for a particular year of assessment must be considered.

⁵⁰ See section 4 of the Interpretation Act, No. 33 of 1957 for the “Reckoning of the number of days” – if the last day is a Sunday or public and public holiday it is excluded from the count.

⁵¹ Paragraph 19(1)(d).

Accordingly, X must use the 2014 assessment to determine the basic amount. The estimate is made on 31 August 2015 which is not more than 18 months after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment (28 February 2014). The 8% escalation is not applied and X's basic amount will be the amount of taxable income as assessed in 2014, that is, R150 000.

Example 2 – Determining whether to increase the basic amount

Facts:

X's year of assessment ends on 28 February each year. X was required to submit a first period provisional tax estimate for the 2016 year of assessment on 31 August 2015. For the 2013 year of assessment, a notice of assessment was issued on 30 June 2013. X's taxable income as assessed in 2013 was R170 000. The 2014 and 2015 returns have not yet been submitted. Taxable income as assessed in 2013 included a taxable capital gain of R10 000 and a severance benefit of R20 000.

Result:

X's latest preceding year of assessment is 2013 because it is the latest year of assessment for which X was issued a notice of assessment 14 days or more from the date on which the first provisional tax estimate of taxable income was submitted. X's 2014 and 2015 assessments have not been issued.

The estimate of taxable income is made on 31 August 2015 which is more than 18 months after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment (28 February 2013). The basic amount must therefore be increased. The basic amount of R140 000 (taxable income assessed for 2013 of R170 000 – taxable capital gain of R10 000 – severance benefit of R20 000) must be increased by 8% for each year up to and including the current year, that is, an 8% increase for 2014, 2015 and 2016. X's basic amount for the first provisional tax estimate for 2016 will therefore be R173 600 [R140 000 + (R140 000 × 8% × 3)].

The Commissioner may estimate taxable income if a provisional taxpayer has failed to submit an estimate as required under the Fourth Schedule.⁵²

Under paragraph 19(3) the Commissioner may:

- Request a provisional taxpayer to justify the estimate submitted or to furnish particulars of income and expenditure or any other particulars that may be required for the year of assessment for which the provisional tax payment is being made. Justification for the estimate or the request for further information and support may be requested when the provisional taxpayer submits an estimate which is above, below or equal to the basic amount.
- Exercise the discretion referred to in the preceding point at any time.
- Increase a provisional taxpayer's estimate to an amount the Commissioner considers reasonable if, after requesting justification or the particulars referred to above, the Commissioner is not satisfied with the estimate.

⁵² Paragraph 19(2).

The increase of an estimate is not subject to objection and appeal.⁵³ Provisional taxpayers that are dissatisfied with the decision to increase an estimate may request an internal review of that decision.⁵⁴ A request for such a review does not suspend the obligation to make payment.⁵⁵ In certain circumstances, provisional taxpayers that have liquidity concerns may apply to enter into an instalment payment agreement with SARS.⁵⁶ Even when instalment payment arrangements are made, provisional taxpayers are liable to pay interest on the outstanding amounts.

The additional provisional tax payable on an increased estimate must be settled within a period determined by the Commissioner.⁵⁷ A payment is subject to a late payment penalty if not paid within the period permitted.⁵⁸

It is not possible to provide an exhaustive list of situations in which the Commissioner's discretion under paragraph 19(3) may be exercised. However, the following are some examples:

- An increase in taxable income resulting from events like legislative changes, mergers or acquisitions.
- Financial results that support an increase in taxable income.
- The estimate submitted by the taxpayer is based on a basic amount that is outdated.
- It is the taxpayer's first year of assessment.
- The provisional taxpayer fails to justify the estimate when requested to do so by SARS.

A nil estimate, based on the premise that the "basic amount" is nil, will not be accepted as an estimate made in respect of a taxpayer's first year of assessment. A taxpayer in this position does not have a "basic amount" as defined⁵⁹ and is required to submit an estimate of the total taxable income in relation to that particular year of assessment.⁶⁰

4.3.2 Penalties

The Act provides for certain penalties to be levied when taxpayers fail to comply with provisional tax obligations. The only penalty applicable to the first period is the penalty levied for the late payment of provisional tax.

The penalties applicable to the second period (that is, the penalty for late payment and for underestimating taxable income) are discussed in 4.4.2.

⁵³ Paragraph 19(3).

⁵⁴ Section 9 of the TA Act. Although it is arguable that an increased estimate results in an additional assessment under section 92 the TA Act, read with the definition of "assessment" in section 1 of that Act, SARS will accept that an increased estimate does not result in an additional assessment for the purposes of the application of section 9 of the TA Act.

⁵⁵ Under section 164 of the TA Act, payment may only be suspended pending an objection or appeal.

⁵⁶ See Part D of Chapter 10 of the TA Act for detail regarding the requirements and consequences.

⁵⁷ Paragraph 25(1).

⁵⁸ Paragraph 27. The penalty is calculated in the same manner as set out in 4.3.2.

⁵⁹ See paragraph 19(1)(d).

⁶⁰ In such cases, the provisions of paragraphs 19(1)(a) or 19(1)(b) will be applicable and will be subject to the provisions of paragraph 19(3).

(a) Penalty for the late payment of provisional tax

A penalty of 10% will be imposed on the late payment of provisional tax for the first period.⁶¹ The penalty of 10% is calculated on the amount of provisional tax not paid. For example, if an amount of R2 000 was not paid or is paid late, the penalty that is charged will be 10% of R2 000, that is, R200.

The Commissioner may remit all or a portion of the penalty under the provisions of the TA Act⁶² if satisfied that –

- reasonable grounds exist for the late payment;
- the non-compliance has been remedied, that is, the full amount of the provisional tax due has been paid in full; and
- either –
 - the penalty was imposed for a first incidence of non-compliance; or
 - the amount of the penalty involved was less than R2 000.

This penalty, or a relevant portion of the penalty, will also be remitted if the taxpayer is able to satisfy SARS that “exceptional circumstances” rendered the taxpayer incapable of complying with the obligation to make payment of provisional tax by the due date. The “exceptional circumstances”⁶³ may be grouped into the following categories:

- External factors, namely, a natural or human-made disaster or a civil disturbance or disruption in services.
- Personal factors, namely, a serious illness or accident; serious emotional or mental distress; or serious financial hardship (for example, in the case of a business, the risk to continuity of business operations along with continued employment of employees or for an individual, the lack of basic living requirements).
- Acts by SARS, namely, a capturing error, a processing delay, provision of incorrect information in an official publication or media release, delay in providing information to any person or a failure to provide sufficient time for an adequate response to a request for information.
- Other circumstances of comparable seriousness.

The decision by SARS not to remit all or a part of the penalty is subject to objection and appeal.⁶⁴

4.3.3 Interest

The interest provisions in the TA Act are not yet effective. Accordingly, interest which may be imposed under the provisional tax regime is still levied under the Act. The only interest which is charged in respect of the first period is when provisional tax is overdue, that is, the payment is late.

⁶¹ Paragraph 27, read with Chapter 15 of the TA Act.

⁶² Under section 217(3) of the TA Act.

⁶³ As set out in section 218(2) of the TA Act.

⁶⁴ Section 220 of the TA Act.

Interest applicable to the second period (that is, interest for late payment or the underestimate of provisional tax) is discussed in 4.4.3.

(a) Interest on overdue payments

Interest is levied at the prescribed rate when the first provisional tax payment is not paid in full within the period prescribed for payment.⁶⁵ The prescribed rate is the rate of interest fixed by the Minister of Finance by notice in the Gazette under the Public Finance Management Act, 1999. The prescribed rate may vary over time. A list of the prescribed rates applicable for different periods of time is available on the SARS website.

The interest is determined on the amount of provisional tax that remains unpaid and is calculated from the end of the period in which payment should have been made until the date payment is made. For example, if provisional tax of R500 is due on 31 August and the amount is paid on 14 October, interest at the prescribed rate will be levied for the period 1 September up to and including 14 October. Interest will be payable even if a taxpayer has been granted instalment arrangements.

The Commissioner may, at the Commissioner's discretion, waive the interest levied depending on the circumstances of the case.⁶⁶

4.4 The second period – estimates of taxable income, penalties and interest

4.4.1 Estimates of taxable income

For the second period, a provisional taxpayer is required to submit a return to the Commissioner which includes an estimate of the total taxable income that will be derived by the taxpayer in the year of assessment (second period estimate). The amount of the second provisional tax payment is based on this estimate (see 4.2.1 and 4.2.2). The return must be submitted even if the amount of the provisional tax payment is nil.

In relation to the first period, the estimate of taxable income cannot be less than the "basic amount" unless the circumstances of the case justify the submission of a lower amount (see 4.3.1). This limitation does not apply to the second period estimate and a provisional taxpayer is free to determine that the second period estimate is equal to the basic amount for the second period or to another amount which is more or less than the basic amount. See 4.3.1 for the principles applicable to the estimate of taxable income and the calculation of the basic amount, these principles, including the Commissioner's ability to estimate or increase estimates of taxable income, are also applicable to the second period. Practically, because the second period estimate is made at or close to the end of the year of assessment it means that a taxpayer is often in a position to make a relatively accurate estimate of taxable income for the year of assessment concerned and does not base the second period estimate on the basic amount. The basic amount for the second period remains relevant in the determination of the possible penalty for the underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimating taxable income [see 4.4.2(b)] even if it is not used in determining the second period estimate.

⁶⁵ Under section 89bis(2). See 4.2.1, 4.2.2 and 4.2.3 for detail on the period prescribed for payment.

⁶⁶ Section 89bis(2).

4.4.2 Penalties

Two penalties are potentially levied in respect of the second period, namely –

- a penalty for the late payment of provisional tax;⁶⁷ and
- a penalty for the underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation.⁶⁸

(a) Penalty for the late payment of provisional tax

The penalty for the late payment of provisional tax in the first period is discussed in 4.3.2(a). The penalty is calculated and applied in exactly the same manner for the second period.

(b) Penalty for the underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation

A penalty⁶⁹ may be levied when the actual taxable income as finally determined is more than the taxable income estimated on the second provisional tax return. The calculation of the potential penalty depends on whether actual taxable income is more than R1 million or whether actual taxable income is equal to or less than R1 million.

The penalty may be levied even if the Commissioner has increased the estimate under paragraph 19(3) (see 4.3.1). The second estimate submitted by the taxpayer, and not the increased estimate by the Commissioner, must be used to determine whether the estimate is less than the amounts detailed below.⁷⁰

Actual taxable income is more than R1 million

A penalty will be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income for the year of assessment is less than 80% of actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment. The amount of the penalty is 20% of the difference between the amount of normal tax payable for the year of assessment on 80% of actual taxable income, after taking into account any amount of a rebate deductible in the determination of normal tax payable, and the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax paid by the end of the year of assessment.

Lump sum benefits, severance benefits and any amount contemplated in paragraph (d)⁷¹ of "gross income" are not taken into account when calculating this penalty.

Actual taxable income is equal to or less than R1 million

A penalty will be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income is less than –

- 90% of actual taxable income as finally determined; and ⁶⁷ Paragraph 27.

⁶⁸ Paragraph 20.

⁶⁹ Paragraph 20(1). The penalty is deemed to be a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the TA Act. The procedures for imposing and for requesting the remittance of the penalty, in sections 214 and 215 of the TA Act, respectively, thus apply to this penalty.

⁷⁰ Paragraph 20(1) refers to the estimate of taxable income submitted by the provisional taxpayer. This interpretation is also consistent with the purpose and intention of the penalty.

⁷¹ Paragraph (d) was added to this exclusion with effect for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 March 2015.

- the basic amount applicable to the second period.

In applying these criteria, a penalty will not be levied if the second period estimate of taxable income was greater than the applicable basic amount.

The amount of the penalty is 20% of the difference between the lesser of –

- the amount of normal tax payable for the year of assessment on 90% of actual taxable income as finally determined; and
- the amount of normal tax payable for the year of assessment on the basic amount applicable to the second period, and the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax paid by the end of the year of assessment.

The amount of normal tax payable for the year of assessment is determined after taking into account any amount of a rebate deductible in the determination of normal tax payable.⁷²

Lump sum benefits, severance benefits and any amount contemplated in paragraph (d) of "gross income" are not taken into account when calculating this penalty.

Example 3 – Penalty on underpayment as a result of underestimation

Facts:

Y is a natural person. As a provisional taxpayer Y was required to submit provisional tax returns for the 2016 year of assessment. Y's basic amount, based on the notice of assessment for the 2015 year of assessment, was R300 000. Y expected taxable income to be less than the basic amount because of proven poor trading conditions and therefore submitted first and second period estimates of taxable income of R200 000 for the year.

On assessment, Y's taxable income was finally determined as R280 000. No employees' tax was paid during the year. Y paid provisional tax during the year of R24 191. Y is 58 years of age and is not a member of a medical scheme registered under the Medical Schemes Act, 1998.

Result:

Y's estimate of R200 000 was less than 90% of taxable income as finally determined ($R280\,000 \times 90\% = R252\,000$) and less than the basic amount (R300 000). Y is liable for a penalty at the rate of 20% on the difference between the lesser of normal tax payable on –

- 90% of taxable income [that is, tax on R252 000 = R37 711 (R50 968 – the primary rebate of R13 257)]; and
- the basic amount [tax on R300 000 = R50 986 (R64 243 – the primary rebate of R13 257)], and the total provisional and employee's tax paid during the 2016 year of assessment (R24 191).

⁷² Paragraph 20(1)(b)(i)(aa) and (bb).

The penalty payable for the underestimation of provisional tax is therefore R2 704 [$20\% \times (R37\ 711 - R24\ 191)$].

The penalty for the underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation must be reduced by any penalty for the late payment of provisional tax imposed on the late payment of the second provisional tax payment [see 4.3.2(a) and 4.4.2(a)].⁷³

Example 4 – Penalty on underpayment as a result of underestimation when the Commissioner has increased the estimate under paragraph 19(3)

Facts:

ABC (Pty) Ltd (ABC), a provisional taxpayer, was required to submit provisional tax returns for the 2015 year of assessment. ABC's year-end is 30 June. ABC's basic amount, based on the notice of assessment for the 2014 year of assessment, was R4 million.

ABC submitted a first period estimate of R4 million by the due date for submission, 31 December 2014, and paid the tax due of R560 000 [$(R4\ \text{million} \times 28\%) / 2$] by the due date for payment, 31 December 2014. On 9 January 2015 the Commissioner requested ABC to justify the first period estimate. The Commissioner was not satisfied with the estimate and increased the estimate to taxable income of R4,5 million. On 16 January 2015 SARS issued an additional assessment which required a further payment of R70 000 [$((R4,5\ \text{million} \times 28\%) / 2) - R560\ 000$] by 30 January 2015. ABC made the payment on 30 January 2015.

ABC submitted a second period estimate of R4,5 million by the due date for submission, 30 June 2015 and paid the tax due of R630 000 [$(R4,5\ \text{million} \times 28\%) - (R560\ 000 + R70\ 000)$] by the due date for payment, 30 June 2015. On 8 July 2015 the Commissioner requested ABC to justify the second period estimate. The Commissioner was not satisfied with the estimate and increased the estimate to taxable income of R5 million. On 15 July 2015 SARS issued an additional assessment which required a further payment of R140 000 [$(R5\ \text{million} \times 28\%) - (R560\ 000 + R70\ 000 + R630\ 000)$] by 29 July 2015. ABC made the payment on 29 July 2015.

On assessment, ABC's taxable income was finally determined as R7 million. No employees' tax was paid during the year.

Result:

ABC's second period estimate of R4,5 million was less than 80% of taxable income as finally determined ($R7\ \text{million} \times 80\% = R5,6\ \text{million}$). ABC is liable for a penalty at the rate of 20% on the difference between –

- tax on 80% of actual taxable income, that is, R1 568 000 ($R5,6\ \text{million} \times 28\%$); and
- tax paid during the year of assessment, that is, R1 260 000 ($R560\ 000 + R70\ 000 + R630\ 000$).*

⁷³ Paragraph 20(2B), effective for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 March 2014.

Therefore, the penalty on underpayment as a result of underestimation is R61 600 [(R1 568 000 – R1 260 000) × 20%].

* Taxes paid during the year of assessment were the first and second provisional tax payments (R560 000 and R630 000 respectively) and the additional payment for the first period (R70 000). The additional payment for the second period (R140 000) was made only after the end of the year of assessment on 29 July 2015 and may not be taken into account in the calculation of the penalty.

A provisional taxpayer who fails to submit an estimate of taxable income for the second period or who submits the estimate on or after the due date of the subsequent provisional payment under paragraph 21, 23 or 23A, is deemed for purposes of paragraph 19 and for calculating the penalty on the underpayment as a result of underestimation to have submitted a nil estimate of taxable income.⁷⁴

The deemed submission of a nil estimate of taxable income may have a significant impact on the penalty calculation.

Example 5 – Penalty for late payment and penalty on underpayment as a result of underestimation

Facts:

ABC (Pty) Ltd (ABC), a provisional taxpayer, was required to submit provisional tax returns for the 2015 year of assessment. ABC's year-end is 30 June. ABC's basic amount, based on the notice of assessment for the 2014 year of assessment, was R4 million.

ABC submitted a first period estimate of R4 million by the due date for submission, 31 December 2014, and paid the tax due of R560 000 [(R4 million × 28%) / 2] by the due date for payment, 31 December 2014. On 9 January 2015 the Commissioner requested ABC to justify the first period estimate. The Commissioner was not satisfied with the estimate and increased the estimate to taxable income of R4,5 million. On 16 January 2015 SARS issued an additional assessment which required an additional payment of R70 000 [((R4,5 million × 28%) / 2) – R560 000] by 29 January 2015. ABC paid the amount on 29 January 2015.

ABC (Pty) Ltd submitted a second period estimate of R4,5 million on 2 January 2016 and also paid the tax due of R630 000 [(R4,5 million × 28%) – (R560 000 + R70 000)] on this date. The due date for submission of the estimate and payment of the related tax was 30 June 2015. The reason for the late submission and payment was that ABC (Pty) Ltd was suffering cash flow constraints.

On 12 January 2016 the Commissioner requested ABC (Pty) Ltd to justify the second period estimate. The Commissioner was not satisfied with the estimate and increased the estimate to taxable income of R5 million. On 19 January 2016 SARS issued an additional assessment which required a further payment of R140 000 [(R5 million × 28%) – (R560 000 + R70 000 + R630 000)] by 3 February 2016. ABC made the payment on 3 February 2016.

⁷⁴ Paragraph 20(2A), effective for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 March 2014.

On assessment, ABC's taxable income was finally determined as R7 million. No employees' tax was paid during the year.

Result:

ABC's second period estimate was not submitted before the subsequent provisional payment, that is the first provisional payment for 2016, which was due on 31 December 2015. As a result, ABC is deemed under paragraph 20(2A) to have submitted a nil estimate of taxable income for the purposes of paragraph 19 and the penalty for underpayment as a result of underestimation.

A deemed submission of a nil estimate for paragraph 19 means that ABC did not have a liability to pay provisional tax under paragraph 17 and therefore the late payment penalty under paragraph 27 does not arise.

The deemed estimate of nil taxable income is less than 80% of taxable income as finally determined (R7 million \times 80% = R5,6 million) and accordingly ABC Ltd is liable for the penalty at the rate of 20% on the difference between –

- tax on 80% of taxable income, that is, R1 568 000 (R5,6 million \times 28%); and
- tax paid during the year of assessment, that is, R630 000 (R560 000 + R70 000)*.

Therefore, the penalty on underpayment as a result of underestimation is R187 600 [(R1 568 000 – R630 000) \times 20%]. This penalty must be reduced by the late payment penalty levied for the second period,⁷⁵ which in ABC's case amounted to Rnil. The final penalty for underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation is therefore R187 600 (R187 600 – Rnil).

* Taxes paid during the year of assessment were the first provisional tax payments (R560 000) and the additional payment for the first period (R70 000). The second period payment (R630 000) and the additional payment for the second period (R140 000) were made only after the end of the year of assessment and may not be taken into account in the calculation of the penalty.

The deemed submission of a nil estimate of taxable income has the effect of consolidating the penalty for failing to submit an estimate on time⁷⁶ with the penalty for underestimating provisional tax.

Possible remission of all or a part of the penalty for the underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation

Taxpayers may apply to the Commissioner to reduce the penalty, as calculated above, for underestimating taxable income. The Commissioner may remit all or part of the penalty if the Commissioner is satisfied or partly satisfied that the second period estimate of taxable income –

- was seriously calculated with due regard to any factors having a bearing on it; and ⁷⁵ Paragraph 20(2B).

⁷⁶ Paragraph 20A, which dealt with this penalty, was repealed with effect from years of assessment commencing on or after 1 March 2015. Refer to the repealed paragraph 20A for detail.

- was not deliberately or negligently understated.⁷⁷

The word “serious”, from which the word “seriously” is derived, is not defined in the Act and must therefore be given its ordinary grammatical meaning. “Serious” is defined in the Concise Oxford English Dictionary⁷⁸ to mean the following:

“Demanding or characterised by careful consideration or application. Solemn or thoughtful. 2. Sincere and in earnest.”

The Collins English Dictionary⁷⁹ defines “serious” to mean the following:

“Grave in nature or disposition; thoughtful. 4. Requiring effort or concentration.”

“Seriously” modifies the verb “calculate” by describing the degree to which a taxpayer must go in calculating the estimate. Thus, the calculation must be one which has been carefully considered and is thoughtful, earnest and sincere. A taxpayer must therefore have sensibly (and by careful reasoning and judgment, in a mathematical manner, and using experience, common sense and all available information) determined the amount of the estimate before the Commissioner is able to reduce a penalty.

Provisional taxpayers who merely rely on the basic amount to estimate the second period amount of taxable income are unlikely to meet these requirements for a reduction in the penalty for underestimating taxable income. The reason for this is that, as noted above, the Commissioner is entitled to reduce or remit the penalty only if, amongst other requirements, he is satisfied that the estimate was “seriously calculated”. In the absence of particular facts and circumstances which demonstrate that the use of the basic amount was actively considered and was appropriate under the circumstances, this requirement will not be met.

The Commissioner may also remit the whole or any portion of this penalty⁸⁰ if satisfied that the failure to submit the estimate on time was not due to an intent to postpone or evade payment of provisional tax or income tax.⁸¹

The decision not to reduce the penalty is subject to objection and appeal.⁸²

See 4.3.2(a) for additional circumstances under which the Commissioner may remit all or part of a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the TA Act.

4.4.3 Interest

In relation to the second period, interest is charged in two situations, namely, the –

- late payment of provisional tax, that is, the payment is overdue;⁸³ and
- underpayment of provisional tax.⁸⁴

⁷⁷ Paragraph 20(2).

⁸² Section 104(1) of TA Act.

⁸³ Levied under section 89*bis*.

⁸⁴ Levied under section 89*quat*.

In contrast, SARS is required to pay the provisional taxpayer interest if there is an overpayment of provisional tax.⁸⁵

(a) Interest on the late payment of provisional tax

The interest which is charged if provisional tax is overdue in the first period is discussed in 4.3.3. The calculation for interest charged if provisional tax is overdue in the second period is performed in the same manner – see 4.3.3 for details.

(b) Interest on the underpayment of provisional tax

Interest is levied at the prescribed rate on the underpayment of provisional tax⁸⁶ from the effective date until the date of assessment of normal tax if actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment exceeds –

- (i) R20 000, in the case of a company; or
- (ii) R50 000, in any other case.

An underpayment arises if the normal tax payable on actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment exceeds the credit amount.⁸⁷

Normal tax payable is after any applicable rebates and for purposes of calculating interest on the underpayment of provisional tax includes the additional amount⁸⁸ payable on the underestimation of the second period estimate of taxable income [see 4.4.2(b)], the penalty for the failure to submit the second period estimate timeously⁸⁹ and the understatement penalty under section 222 of the TA Act.

The “credit amount”⁹⁰ means the sum of –

- all provisional tax paid in respect of the year (first, second and third periods);
- employees’ tax paid or withheld during the year; and
- foreign tax credits that qualify as a rebate under section 6quat.

The “effective date” in relation to any year of assessment is –

- if the provisional taxpayer is a company which has a year of assessment ending on the last day of February or is a person (other than a company) who has not been granted permission to render accounts for a period ending on a date other than the last day of February, the date falling seven months after the last day of such year; or
- in any other case, the date falling six months after the last day of such year.

⁹⁰ As defined in section 89quat(1).

Example 6 – Interest on underestimation*Facts:*

Z's year of assessment ends on the last day of February each year. Z's notice of assessment for the 2015 year of assessment is dated 1 January 2016. Z's final tax liability for the year on taxable income of R280 000 is R45 421 (R58 147 normal tax – R12 726 primary rebate). Z made provisional tax payments for the first and second periods amounting to R20 000 and also paid employees' tax of R10 000. Z made a third payment of provisional tax of R12 000 on 28 September 2015. The prescribed rate of interest is, for the purposes of this example, 9,5% per year.

Result:

Z will be liable for section 89*quat* interest on the underpayment of provisional tax from 1 October 2015 up to and including 31 December 2015 on the amount by which the final tax liability exceeds the credit amount. Z's credit amount is R42 000 (R20 000 + R10 000 + R12 000), and the tax shortfall is therefore R3 421 (R45 421 – R42 000). The interest payable on the underestimation of provisional tax is R81,92 ($R3\,421 \times 9,5\% \times 92 / 365$, for October, November and December).

The Commissioner is authorised to direct that all or a portion of the interest not be paid if –

- (a) it is a natural person's first year of assessment as a provisional taxpayer and the Commissioner is satisfied that the circumstances warrant it;⁹¹ or
- (b) the Commissioner, after considering the facts of a specific case, is satisfied that the interest payable is a result of circumstances beyond the control of the taxpayer.⁹²

The Commissioner's decision in this regard is subject to objection and appeal.⁹³

(c) Interest received on the overpayment of provisional tax

Interest is payable by SARS to a provisional taxpayer if that provisional taxpayer has overpaid provisional tax.⁹⁴ Provisional tax is considered to be overpaid if the credit amount⁹⁵ exceeds the normal tax payable as defined in 4.4.3(b) on actual taxable income as finally determined for the year of assessment, and –

- that excess amount is more than R10 000; or
- actual taxable income is more than R20 000 in the case of a company, or R50 000 in the case of a person other than a company.

⁹² Section 89*quat*(3).

⁹³ Section 89*quat*(5).

⁹⁴ Section 89*quat*(4).

⁹⁵ See 4.4.3(b) for the definition.

The interest that is payable to the taxpayer is calculated at the prescribed rate on the difference between the credit amount and the normal tax. It is calculated from the effective date⁹⁶ until the date on which the difference is refunded to the taxpayer.⁹⁷

4.5 The third period – estimates of actual taxable income, penalties and interest

4.5.1 Estimates of taxable income

A voluntary provisional tax payment, often referred to as a “top-up” payment, can be made in respect of the third period. The payment is generally not determined through an estimation of taxable income but is instead based on actual taxable income for the year as this figure is often known to the provisional taxpayer when making the top-up payment.

4.5.2 Penalties

No penalties are levied in respect of the third period.

4.5.3 Interest

Interest will be levied at the prescribed rate from the effective date until the date of payment if the top-up payment is paid after the effective date.⁹⁸

4.6 Refunds of provisional tax

The Act permits a refund of provisional tax payments previously made only if the taxpayer’s liability for normal tax has been assessed by the Commissioner and the sum of employees’ tax deducted and provisional tax paid in respect of that period exceeds the total liability for normal tax as assessed.⁹⁹ Any excess may be refunded only after the taxpayer has been assessed for the relevant year of assessment. The right to receive a refund is subject to SARS’s right to verify, inspect or audit the refund prior to authorising the payment of the refund.¹⁰⁰ Accordingly, requests to refund or reallocate provisional tax payments, for example, between different periods or different taxpayers cannot be accommodated.

5. Conclusion

Provisional tax is a method used to collect normal tax which will ultimately be payable for a particular year of assessment. There are potentially three payments, two of which are compulsory. The first compulsory payment must be made within the first period which ends six months after the start of the year of assessment. The second compulsory payment must be made on or before the end of the second period which ends on the last day of the year of assessment. A third payment, which is voluntary, must generally be made within seven months of the end of the year of assessment for persons with a year of assessment ending on the last day of February and by companies with a different financial year, within six months of the end of such financial year.

⁹⁶ See 4.4.3(b) for the definition.

⁹⁷ Interest received by or accrued to a provisional taxpayer under this provision must be included in the taxpayer’s section 24J interest computation.

¹⁰⁰ Section 190(2) of the TA Act.

The calculation of the amount of a provisional tax payment involves estimating taxable income for the year concerned. Depending on which payment (first, second or third) and on the facts and circumstances of the case, certain penalties may be imposed and interest levied if the estimates are not accurate.

The Act permits a refund of provisional tax payments previously made only if the taxpayer's liability for normal tax has been assessed by the Commissioner and the sum of employees' tax deducted and provisional tax paid in respect of that period exceeds the total liability for normal tax as assessed.

SARS has a range of guides available on its website which provide further practical guidance on provisional tax matters, such as completing an IRP6 return.

- (b) such taxable income exceeds—
 - (i) R20 000 in the case of a company; or

(2)

(3) Where for the purpose of determining any amount of provisional tax required to be paid by any provisional taxpayer in respect of any year of assessment the liability of such taxpayer for normal tax is required to be estimated in respect of such year, such liability shall be deemed to be the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the relevant rate referred to in subparagraph (4), would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income estimated by such taxpayer in terms of paragraph 19(1) during the period prescribed by this Schedule for the payment of the said amount of provisional tax or if the amount so estimated has been increased by the Commissioner in terms of paragraph 19(3), the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the said rate, would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income as so increased, or if the Commissioner has estimated the provisional taxpayer's taxable income in terms of paragraph 19(2), the amount of normal tax which, calculated at the said rate, would be payable by the provisional taxpayer in respect of the amount of taxable income so estimated.

¹⁰¹ Effective 1 March 2016.

(4) For the purposes of any calculation of normal tax under subparagraph (3) the rate at which such tax is to be calculated shall be the relevant rate which on the date of payment of the provisional tax in question is in force in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which such provisional tax is required to be paid under this Schedule, or if at the said date the rate has not been fixed, the relevant rate in respect of that year foreshadowed by the Minister of Finance in his budget statement, or if at that date the rate has not been fixed or so foreshadowed, the relevant rate which is in force in respect of the latest preceding year of assessment in respect of which rates have been fixed by Parliament.

(5) The Commissioner may from time to time, having regard to the rates of normal tax as fixed by Parliament or foreshadowed by the Minister in his or her budget statement or at the rebates applicable in terms of section 6(2) of this Act and taking into account any other factors having a bearing upon the probable liability of taxpayers for normal tax, prescribe tables for optional use by provisional taxpayers falling within any category specified by the Commissioner, or by provisional taxpayers generally, for the purpose of estimating the liability of such taxpayers for normal tax, and the Commissioner may prescribe the manner in which such tables shall be applied together with the period for which such tables shall remain in force.

(7) The provisions of subparagraphs (3) and (4) shall not apply where the liability of a provisional taxpayer for normal tax is estimated in accordance with any tables prescribed for his use under the provisions of subparagraph (5) and not withdrawn under the provisions of subparagraph (6).

Paragraph 19 – Estimates of the taxable income to be made by provisional taxpayers

- (1)(a) Every provisional taxpayer (other than a company) shall, during every period within which provisional tax is or may be payable by that provisional taxpayer as provided in this Part, submit to the Commissioner (unless the Commissioner directs otherwise) a return of an estimate of the total taxable income which will be derived by the taxpayer in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which provisional tax is or may be payable by the taxpayer: Provided that such estimate will not include any retirement fund lump sum benefit, retirement fund lump sum withdrawal benefit or any severance benefit received by or accrued to or to be received by or accrue to the taxpayer during the relevant year of assessment.
- (b) Every company which is a provisional taxpayer shall, during every period within which provisional tax is or may be payable by it as provided in this Part submit to the Commissioner (unless the Commissioner directs otherwise) a return of an estimate of the total taxable income which will be derived by the company in respect of the year of assessment in respect of which provisional tax is or may be payable by the company.
- (c) The amount of any estimate so submitted by a provisional taxpayer (other than a company) during the period referred to in paragraph 21(1)(a), or by a company (as a provisional taxpayer) during the period referred to in paragraph 23(a), shall not be less than the basic amount applicable to the estimate in question, as contemplated in item (d), unless the circumstances of the case justify the submission of an estimate of a lower amount.
- (d) The basic amount applicable to any estimate submitted by a provisional taxpayer under this paragraph shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, be deemed to be—
- (i) as respects an estimate submitted by a provisional taxpayer (other than a company) under item (a), the taxpayers' taxable income, as assessed by the Commissioner, for the latest preceding year of assessment in relation to such estimate, less—
 - (aa) the amount of any taxable capital gain contemplated in section 26A;

(iii)

Provided that, if an estimate under item (a) or (b) must be made more than 18 months after the end of the latest preceding year of assessment in relation to such estimate, the basic amount determined in respect of subitems (i) and (ii) shall be increased by an amount equal to eight per cent per annum of that amount, from the end of such year to the end of the year of assessment in respect of which the estimate is made.

(i) preceding the year of assessment in respect of which the estimate is made; and

(ii) in respect of which a notice of assessment relevant to the estimate has been issued by the Commissioner not less than 14 days before the date on which the estimate is submitted to the Commissioner.

(1A)

(2) If any provisional taxpayer fails to submit any estimate as required by subparagraph (1), the Commissioner may estimate the taxable income which is required to be estimated.

(3) The Commissioner may call upon any provisional taxpayer to justify any estimate made by the provisional taxpayer in respect of sub-paragraph (1), or to furnish particulars of the provisional taxpayer's income and expenditure or any other particulars that may be required, and, if the Commissioner is dissatisfied with the said estimate, he or she may increase the amount thereof to such amount as he or she considers reasonable, which increase of the estimate is not subject to objection or appeal.

(5) Any estimate or increase made by the Commissioner under the provisions of subparagraph (2) or (3) shall be deemed to take effect in respect of the relevant period within which the provisional taxpayer is required to make any payment of provisional tax in respect of this Part.

Paragraph 20 – Penalty for underpayment of provisional tax as a result of underestimation

(1) If the actual taxable income, as finally determined under this Act, for the year of assessment in respect of which the final or last estimate of his or her taxable income is submitted in respect of paragraph 19(1)(a) by a provisional taxpayer other than a company, or the estimate of its taxable income in respect of the period contemplated in paragraph 23(b) submitted in respect of paragraph 19(1)(b) by a company which is a provisional taxpayer, in respect of any year of assessment is –

- (a) more than R1 million and such estimate is less than 80 per cent of the amount of the actual taxable income the Commissioner must impose, in addition to the normal tax payable in respect of the taxpayer's taxable income for such year of assessment, a penalty, which is deemed to be a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the Tax Administration Act, equal to 20 per cent of the difference between—
 - (i) the amount of normal tax, calculated at the rates applicable in respect of such year of assessment and after taking into account any amount of a rebate deductible in terms of this Act in the determination of normal tax payable, in respect of a taxable income equal to 80 per cent of such actual taxable income; and
 - (ii) the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax in respect of such year of assessment paid by the end of the year of assessment;
- (b) R1 million or less and the estimate is less than 90 per cent of the amount of such actual taxable income and is also less than the basic amount applicable to the estimate in question, as contemplated in paragraph 19(1)(d), the taxpayer shall, subject to the provisions of subparagraphs (2), (2B) and (2C), be liable to pay to the Commissioner, in addition to the normal tax payable in respect of his or her taxable income for such year of assessment, a penalty, which is deemed to be a percentage based penalty imposed under Chapter 15 of the Tax Administration Act, equal to 20 per cent of the difference between—
 - (i) the lesser of—
 - (aa) amount of normal tax, calculated at the rates applicable in respect of such year of assessment and after taking into account any amount of a rebate deductible in terms of this Act in the determination of normal tax payable, in respect of a taxable income equal to 90 per cent of such actual taxable income; and
 - (bb) the amount of normal tax, calculated in respect of a taxable income equal to such basic amount, at the rates applicable in respect of such year of assessment and after taking into account any amount of a rebate deductible in terms of this Act in the determination for normal tax payable; and
 - (ii) the amount of employees' tax and provisional tax in respect of such year of assessment paid by the end of the year of assessment;

Provided that any retirement fund lump sum benefit, retirement fund lump sum withdrawal benefit, severance benefit or any other amount contemplated in paragraph (d) of the definition of "gross income" received by or accrued to or to be received by or accrue to the taxpayer during the relevant year of assessment shall not be taken into account for purposes of this subparagraph;

(2) Where the Commissioner is satisfied that the amount of any estimate referred to in subparagraph (1) was seriously calculated with due regard to the factors having a bearing thereon and was not deliberately or negligently understated, or if the Commissioner is partly so satisfied, the Commissioner may in his discretion remit the penalty or a part thereof.

(2A) If, for the purposes of paragraph 19 and this paragraph, the final or last estimate of his or her taxable income is not submitted in terms of paragraph 19(1)(a) by a provisional taxpayer other than a company, or the estimate of its taxable income in respect of the period contemplated in paragraph 23(b) is not submitted in terms of paragraph 19(1)(b) by a company which is a provisional taxpayer, in respect of any year of assessment, on or before the last day of the period within which provisional tax is or may be payable by that provisional taxpayer as provided in this Part, the provisional taxpayer shall be deemed to have submitted an estimate of an amount of nil taxable income unless the estimate in respect of the relevant provisional payment is submitted prior to the date of the subsequent provisional payment under paragraph 21, 23, 23A.

(2B) Any penalty imposed under subparagraph (1) in respect of a year of assessment must be reduced by any penalty imposed under paragraph 27(1) in respect of payment referred to in paragraph 21(1)(b) or 23(b).

(2C) The Commissioner may, if he or she is satisfied that the provisional taxpayer's failure to submit an estimate timeously was not due to an intent to evade or postpone the payment of provisional tax or normal tax, remit the whole or any part of the penalty imposed under subparagraph (1).

Paragraph 24 – Additional information relating to the payment of provisional tax

24. The Commissioner may absolve any provisional taxpayer from making payment of any amount of provisional tax payable in terms of paragraph 21(1)(a) or paragraph 23(a), if the Commissioner is satisfied that the taxable income which may be derived by such taxpayer for the year of assessment in question cannot be estimated on the facts available at the time when payment of the amount in question has to be made.
